Rutgers Against Hunger
The decrease in the amount of food donated to food pantries combined with the large and continuous increase in the number of families relying on food pantries to feed their families has left shelves empty at the pantries, and cupboards empty in homes. With your help and donations, Rutgers Against Hunger is supplying much needed food to MCFOODS and Edison’s Hands of Hope. Ongoing weekly donations from faculty, staff and students, results in an average of about 1,200 pounds a week in food that goes directly to pantries that are helping families in need.

Green Bins are located all over campus, including the HP Office at 35 College Avenue.

Do it now: one can of fruit or vegetables, one box of cereal, one can of tuna fish, one can of spaghetti – it all adds up!

Thanks!
