

Planner Person

RUTGERS SASHP NEWSLETTER

Monday, Jan. 23, 2023

Dear SAS Honors Program Students,

I have never been a "planner person." Rather, I've almost always been a "buys-and-collects-aesthetically-pleasing-stationary-and-subsequently-forgets-to-ever-use-it" person. However, this semester is my last of my undergrad education, and so I thought it was time for a change. Just about a week ago, I decided that I was determined to create a planner/bullet journal and use it consistently. Last semester was a crazy-chaotic whirlwind trying to juggle several spheres of responsibility, so, really, I've been desperate for anything that could provide me with even the semblance of control over my life. Now, I know myself well enough to realize that there was a fairly high possibility that I would not stick to this plan. So, I saved myself the trouble (and the cash) and didn't bother buying a cute planner tailored for the year of 2023. Instead, I "borrowed" an empty dotted notebook from my sister— a remnant of one of her past failed attempts to bullet journal herself. While I'm only about a week in, I have to admit that I may be a new convert to the bullet-journal lifestyle. It definitely feels good to have all my upcoming dates written neatly in one place. And I wouldn't go so far as to say that my headache tracker (inspired by a quick Pinterest search) makes my headaches better, but I wouldn't say that I don't get just a little excited when I get another headache and have the opportunity to use my markers, you know?

Here's a few planner-worthy events and opportunities to take a look at. Check out the 2023 Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Legacy Series Keynote! Apply to be an Honors Peer Tutor or Peer Leader! Tune into the book launch for The Perils of Populism. Apply for a chance to be featured on the Honors Blog as a Senior Spotlight!
