RUTGERS SASHP NEWSLETTER

Wednesday, March 25, 2020

Dear SAS Honors Program Students,

Welcome back! I hope you all had a safe and relaxing spring break. We are all adjusting to new schedules and routines during this unusual time. It is undoubtedly a difficult transition, but the SASHP is here for you. How are you managing social distancing and online learning? Email your photos to sashp.media@gmail.com with a caption to be featured on our Instagram, @sashp. Photos of pets are encouraged and will make our day!

Although we don't have any events coming up, here are some remote opportunities. Share your RU wisdom by applying to be a peer mentor! Juniors: tell us about your capstone plans by submitting your honors capstone form online by April 21. Read more about the current pass/no credit option. Check in with your honors advising dean before making any decisions - remember, we're here for you. The Rutgers Journal of Bioethics currently seeks editors and designers for the 2020-2021 school year. Looking for new reading material? Check out the Honors Blog for our first Senior Spotlight featuring Francisca Tengey.

From all of us at the SASHP, stay safe and enjoy the day!

With warmest regards,
Julianna Rossano
Student Director of Honors Media

Apply to be a Peer Mentor!

Share your Rutgers and SASHP wisdom by being matched as a Peer Mentor to an incoming first-year honors student. Peer Mentors assist first-year students in the transition to college through sharing information about the university, assisting new students with scheduling classes, and providing friendship and support at the SASHP and college events. Open to all SASHP rising sophomores, juniors and seniors. Visit sashonors.rutgers.edu/peer-mentor to apply by March 29.

Honors Capstone Form

JUNIORS: tell us about your capstone plans. All SASHP juniors are required to submit the SAS Honors Program Online Capstone Form by April 21. For more information on capstone options and requirements, visit www.sashonors.rutgers.edu.

Pass/No Credit Options

Rutgers is currently offering extended pass/no credit options for students due to the University's change in operating status. The SASHP will count P grades for courses to satisfy honors requirements for Spring 2020. The pass/no credit option is available until May 22, so we strongly encourage you to focus on the transition to remote learning and consult with your honors advising dean before making any changes. For more information on this option, visit nbprovost.rutgers.edu/guidance-faq.

We're Here for You

During these unusual times, the SASHP is here for you. If you have any questions or concerns regarding your current situation, don't hesitate to reach out to your honors dean. The fall 2020 schedule of classes will go live on March 30. Be prepared to start planning ahead! Visit sashonors.rutgers.edu for contact information.

Rutgers Journal of Bioethics

The Rutgers Journal of Bioethics currently seeks editors and designers for the 2020-2021 school year. They welcome students from all disciplines with a passion for scientific communications. Visit sites.rutgers.edu/bioethics-society for more information. Email resume and writing sample to rubioethics.journ@gmail.com by March 31. Sample should be no more than 3 pages double-spaced.
